BIOGRAPHY

A physician at the policy table

Dr. Dawn Francis, MD, MHS, AGAF, FACG, is a physician and healthcare payment policy expert who brings more than 25 years of clinical practice and a decade inside federal payment policy to the rooms where healthcare decisions are made. She translates how the system actually works for the people who live and work inside it, and for those who can make decisions on how to fix it.

Her communication is nonpartisan and evidence-based, and it is built to foster understanding and cooperation, with the goal of a healthcare system that is universally accessible and affordable in the United States. Dr. Francis publishes a weekly policy brief on Substack.

SIGNATURE TALKS

Five talks, each tailored to your audience

01

The Current Status Of Healthcare Payment Policy In The United States

Why care is hard to reach and harder to afford, and what the evidence says actually moves the needle.

02

Government Payment For Healthcare In The United States

The largest single expenditure of the US Government is healthcare. This talk explains the many ways in which the US Government funds healthcare and the models that are used including an NHS model (the VA), Medicare/Medicaid, and Private Insurance (Medicare Advantage Plans, Tricare).

03

Government Payment Policy: Medicare, Medicaid & The Road Ahead

A decade inside the federal payment process, distilled: how rates are set, where the system strains, and where it's heading.

04

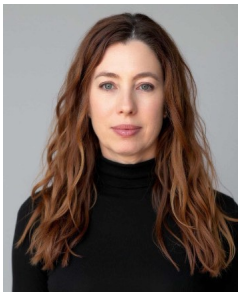

Digital & Virtual Care: Lessons From Building It In Real Time

What it takes to stand up virtual care at scale.

05

Rebuilding Trust In American Healthcare

Why patients and clinicians alike have lost trust in the system, and how design and policy can begin to earn it back.
